

GERMANS DEFEATED BY THE BRITISH WITH GREAT LOSS NEAR LA BASSEE

Kaiser in Person Exhorted His Soldiers to Die if Necessary to Win Big Victory.

The attack began the Kaiser went among the German troops. The German plan was to draw the allies in the direction of Peronne by a vigorous attack in that direction while two infantry regiments made a turning movement by way of the La Bassée-Helene road.

BETWEEN THE FIRMS.

"However, the plan became known. When the Germans sent their infantry forward in close formation they received a murderous fire, being caught between the English artillery in front and the French guns on the flank. The Kaiser's soldiers were heavily mowed down.

The German infantry regiments, hurried with the task of attacking on the allies, advanced to the direction of Amiens. They were allowed to continue their progress for some time, but when within five hundred yards of the allies line, the French sent a heavy fire. Those of the Germans who were unable to had a shot at except a part of one French regiment and the rest, who were mowed down. The save was surrounded by machine guns, but finally it surrendered at midnight and we took 200 prisoners.

The fight to capture the remainder of the French line lasted until Thursday morning at 4 o'clock. When the Kaiser's army was mowed down, the victory was won. Three lines of French soldiers of the French line of 1,200 yards, the French took 1,000 men, eight machine guns, one aerodrome, and a quantity of supplies in the captured zone.

"From La Bassée French soldiers, all belonging to the Light Infantry Division, were sent. They had fought and defended themselves heroically. The French line was broken through by the British, they advanced through the engagement and the courageous persistence which led them to victory in the fight north of the village was killed. The fighting stopped at 3 p.m.

VICTORY FOR SAXONS.

The victory for the Kaiser in the battle of Croisette, north of the River Aisne, was won by Saxons. According to official dispatches received today from Berlin. This engagement is called the battle of Huthoe in the German. The following distribution of the conflict, which lasted from Sunday morning at 4 o'clock, is given from the official dispatches.

The battle developed upon the plain of Croisette and at Huthoe, which was destroyed by French artillery. The German trenches ran southward and the French line was in the west. The Germans on the French at Pont-à-Madame took the attacking force, which was mowed down.

GAIN ON GREAT DUNE.

As a result of the failure of the Germans to make any great success in the fighting that culminated on Emperor William's birthday, the offensive of the German troops has apparently slackened all along the line. The official communication follows:

"The day of January 28 was marked by local actions, which were favorable to us.

"In Heligum, in the region of Nieuport, our infantry gained a foothold in the great dune to which there was a reference in the communiqué of January 27.

"A German flying machine was destroyed by our gunners.

"In the sections of Ypres, Lens and Arras there were artillery combats, very violent at times, and some fairly attacks were started, but these were immediately repulsed by our fire.

"In the sections of Soissons, Craonne and Reims there is nothing to report. Between Heligum and the Ypres sector were artillery combats of an acute intensity. It is now known that the attack repulsed by us at Pont-à-Madame on the night of January 27-28 cost the Germans dearly.

"On the heights of the Meuse and in the Woevre region the day was calm. On the Ypres there were artillery combats of an acute intensity. It is now known that the attack repulsed by us at Pont-à-Madame on the night of January 27-28 cost the Germans dearly.

"ONE MAN WITH GOD IS A MAJORITY," KAISER'S MOTTO

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—Emperor William, speaking on his birthday to the war correspondents at the general headquarters in the field, said:

Your reports have a high patriotic tone and it is of great value to our men in the trenches when we read and hear such statements. My principle—and it applies to this war also—is the word of old John Knox, the reformer in Scotland, "One man with God is always in the majority."

Spoken having been driven from the West-Arg River valley, the Emperor said: Vienna reports the probability of an early evacuation of London by the Russians.

To lifting of the siege of Przemyśl and the capture of Lemberg, the capital of Galicia, would constitute one of the greatest triumphs won by the Austro-German alliance in the war.

"German official report follows: In the western theatre of war, our operations are meeting with success, according to an official statement issued today, having said for its attainment it would be necessary to sacrifice 200,000 or 300,000 lives.

"Rather than bring about such slaughter the government, fully assured of victory for our arms, thinks it better that the war be prolonged. A separate peace with Austria-Hungary, or even Hungary itself, is practically impossible. To obtain real peace it will be necessary for the Hapsburg monarchy to acknowledge itself defeated, but even in this event consideration which would have to be effected would hardly be acceptable to it.

"The dual monarchy would not only have to acknowledge its defeat, but also the fact that it was a member of the Austro-Hungarian empire. Satisfaction to all these would mean complete dismemberment. Moreover there is little ground for anticipating a separate peace with Hungary, which could only be obtained at the price of the dismemberment of the empire of Austria.

"During the last twenty-four hours, the west bank of the Vistula has been driven from the Russian artillery successfully inflicted great losses upon the Germans in their trenches.

"In the region northeast of Brest-Litovsk, near Minsk, the Germans defeated Russian attacks, after which they withdrew to their trenches.

"The right flank of the lower Vistula fighting continues. On the bank of the Vistula, in the region of Brest-Litovsk, Russian troops supported by machine guns yesterday attacked the enemy's forces, repulsed them by means of hand grenades.

"In the region of Chyabov-Dolina the Russian troops, who had surrounded another section of the Russian position, the number of prisoners taken has not yet been ascertained.

"In some districts in the east the enemy tried to resist the Russian offensive, but failed of success everywhere. The situation is unchanged."

AUSTRIAN SUCCESS.

While an official report from the German general staff issued at the afternoon states some gains for the Kaiser's troops, in both the eastern and western theatre of war, the best news from the Austro-German front must still come from the Carpathians. The Austrian success in those mountains still continues, the

DISMEMBERMENT OF AUSTRIA LOSES

PETROGRAD, Jan. 29.—Dismemberment of the Austro-Hungarian empire will be the penalty if the nation is defeated in the present war.

The Russian press in an official inspired article in the House Gazette today. After referring to reports that Russia may conclude a separate peace with Austria or Hungary as being "rumors without any foundation," the House Gazette continues:

"Peace may be made only after complete and final victory over Germany. Only in that event can the Russian people be assured of a permanent peace in Europe. This result could actually be obtained only for its attainment it would be necessary to sacrifice 200,000 or 300,000 lives.

GERMAN CRUISER BADLY DAMAGED

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The German battle cruiser Derfflinger was badly damaged in Sunday's naval battle in the North Sea, in which the cruiser Rooner was sunk by the British fleet.

The ministry of foreign affairs announced that it had obtained authoritative information of the Derfflinger's being placed in drydock at the Blohm-Voss works in Hamburg for repairs.

The cruiser Rooner is also believed to have been damaged. It is now anchored at Chatham. The Derfflinger and Rooner, which participated in the combat anchored at Heligum. They are understood to have been undamaged.

The Derfflinger is a new and powerful vessel of 25,000 tons, having Krupp armor and carrying eight 12-inch guns and twelve 5.9-inch guns. The Rooner displaces 9,500 tons and has twelve 8.2-inch guns.

Prussian Losses Nearly a Million

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 29.—Prussian casualties in the war up to January 21 had reached the enormous total of 883,348, according to figures published by the Nieuws-Hollandsche Courant.

The newspaper says that these figures are taken from 141 lists of Prussian losses, and continues:

"This total comprises killed, wounded and missing, the wounded numbering 450,000. Of these about 40 per cent. have already returned to the front."

"To the total of 883,348 will have to be added 140,000 Bavarians, 70,000 Württembergers and 14,000 Saxons, recently lists to show the complete losses of the Teutonic army."

JAIL MATRON JOB OFFERED TO '400'

Back Bay society women were invited by Sheriff Quinn to become matrons for one month at Charles Street Jail at the twentieth anniversary meeting of the Massachusetts Reform League at the residence of Mrs. J. Edward Clark, No. 21 Haverford street.

"If there is any lady here who desires to see how a jail is conducted, I would give her a position as matron for one month and in that time she would see for herself what kind of people we are taking care of there and what is being done for their correction," said the sheriff.

After great difficulty is surmounted, there are not such bad persons in jail after all.

Mrs. Florence Spooner, president of the league, asked:

"Do you think it wrong for the poor creature to have morphine? But she is there to make them forget their troubles?"

Mr. William H. van Allen, called the present system of punishing criminals a gigantic failure and said:

"All of us came from criminal stock, and go far enough back, and the prime principle is to restore the criminal to the normal condition, which means we are not doing these things."

Judge Robert O. Harris, Judge Baker and Pierce Long, son of ex-governor Long, also spoke.

Bill Would End Real Estate Prize Offers

The passage of a bill to punish real estate promoters who issue false and misleading statements relative to the accomplishment by the offer of prizes and rewards was urged before the Legislative Committee on Judiciary by Attorney Julius T. Anselmi.

Mr. Anselmi said that the bill would amend the law in covered by a statute in equity in the property, said Mr. Anselmi. The bill would make the offense a misdemeanor.

Our guessing contest one grand fizzle!

WE OFFERED A PRIZE OF AN AUTOGRAPHED PORTRAIT OF SKINNY SHANER TO ANYONE DOPING OUT WHAT WAS IN A TIN CAN WHICH BOOB NELSON CARRIED AROUND ALL LAST WEEK. OUT OF CLOSE ON TO 86 MILLION READERS OF OUR STUFF (APPLAUSE) ONLY 76 KICKED IN; THE REST REMAINED NEUTRAL. THREE CHEERS FOR THE GALLANT 76. THEY GUESSED EVERY-THING FROM GRASS HOPPERS TO FRESH SARDINES, BUT THEY WERE ALL WRONG. TOO BAD, TOO BAD, NOW WE'LL HAVE TO TEAR UP SKINNY SHANER.

HERE'S THE AUTOGRAPHED PORTRAIT OF SKINNY SHANER WHICH WAS TO GO TO THE READER WHO GUESSED HORSE HAIR. SEVERAL GUESSED SNAKE. PRETTY DARN CLOSE, IF THAT'S ANY CONSOLATION.

Yours Truly S. Shaner 1915.

AND, THIS IS WHAT IT WAS!

A HORSE HAIR!

ACCORDING TO BOOB NELSON, IF PUT INTO WATER AND KEPT THERE UNTIL IT COMPLETELY FORGETS ITSELF, A HORSE HAIR WILL TURN INTO A SNAKE. THIS ONE HAS NOT YET ENTERED THE REPTILE KINGDOM, BUT YOU CAN'T TELL WHEN IT WILL. WATCH IT CLOSELY.

BOOB NELSON, OWNER OF THE HORSE HAIR WHO INTENDS TO CHARM IT WHEN IT BECOMES A SNAKE. FOR THIS PURPOSE HE HAS GOTTEN HOLD OF A TIN WHISTLE SOME PLACE AND WILL PRACTICE BLOWING CHARMS SO AS TO BE READY WHEN THE MOMENT ARRIVES.

To Insure Peace This Nation Must Be Too Strong to Invite Attack

Congressman Hay of Virginia, the Democratic chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, made one of those ridiculous speeches concerning our national defence which brings so much discredit upon the Democratic party. In the face of our utter unpreparedness to defend ourselves against a foreign foe, this preposterous gentleman declared "that no nation was going to attack the strongest nation on earth. The United States has a LATENT power greater than any other country or of any other three countries in the civilized world."

Anyone but an absurd person like Mr. Hay must wonder what good LATENT power would do this country in the face of a great, disciplined, fully equipped, hostile army. A LATENT power has defeated more countries that relied upon it than it has ever aided nations to defend themselves.

Few men have the opportunity to make an answer so complete and overwhelming as was given to Congressman Gardner and few men ever took better advantage of one than did Mr. Gardner when he replied to Congressman Hay. Mr. Gardner recalled an historic incident which is not generally known. On March 22, 1810, Congress was debating this resolution: "Resolved, That the military and naval establishments ought to be reduced." In favor of that resolution, there arose on the floor of the House the famous John Randolph of Virginia, who said:

"With respect to war—we have, thank God! in the Atlantic a fosse wide and deep enough to keep off any immediate danger to our territory. The belligerents of Europe know, as well as we feel, that war is out of the question."

Mr. Gardner, after quoting Randolph's words, said: "In two years the war of 1812 broke out, the impassable fosse was crossed by a hostile army, and before the war was over the British soldiers had applied the torch to the very chamber where Randolph made his mad appeal to the mad vanity of his countrymen. 'We can lick all creation!' Everything ready for the drop of the hat. 'Trained citizenry leaping to arms'—all the well-known jargon appears in the annals, including the familiar argument that foreign nations would wear each other out and would have no strength left to challenge us."

Congressman Gardner is right. Our second war with Great Britain was an eternal disgrace to this country. Our capital was captured and burned. Our armies failed everywhere except at New Orleans. We had half a million men under arms and the British had but forty thousand regular troops. Our armies were utterly incompetent and miserably led. There were more court martials for incompetence than medals of honor for military achievement. It was only by greatest good fortune that we escaped with our national life.

Washington urged us "in the time of peace to prepare for war" as the very best guarantee of peace. John Adams said that the highest duty of a statesman was to care for the defense of his country. Thomas Jefferson said that we should have a force of three hundred thousand perfectly trained militia. Misanthropic men like John Randolph, dealers in bombast, led the country to disregard the warning of the great statesman who had guided us through the trials of the Revolutionary War and helped us to found the nation.

If preparation was so necessary in those days, when almost any iron foundry could make a cannon in a few days, when any gunsmith, with two helpers, could turn out a rifle without machinery, when an army of twenty-five thousand was a large army, how infinitely more necessary is preparation today, when armies of several millions are usual, when it takes an enormous factory, with enormous machinery, which itself must be made, to turn out a gun or a rifle, when it takes a whole year to make a torpedo which is discharged in a second.

BLAMES MRS. WALTERS

EDITOR BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir:—I think if a woman conducts herself as Mrs. Walters did, knowing Mr. Rogers was a husband, there should be no sympathy for her. She should receive just punishment for poisoning her helpless children.

Mrs. Walters seemed to consider her children as animals and not as human beings. Why should she not be considered as an animal also?

In the second place she was old enough to know what she was doing.

ing, and she was not an innocent victim of Rogers. In the third place, when a woman is taking a life, no man or woman has any rights beyond self-defense.

KEEP WHEAT AT HOME

EDITOR BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir:—I don't think it would be wise of this country to keep her wheat at home, and by doing so, to let down the price here and force the warring nations to stop through lack of food. Yours truly,

M. C. HUNTER.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Friends of the Downtrodden

Being more or less of a summary of the testimony at the hearing before the National Industrial Commission.

"My heart is with the workingman," exclaims the billionaire; "He should not have to toil too hard, or suffer want or care. His home-life should be beautiful and full of calm enjoyment. He never should be out of funds, or lacking in employment. 'Whose business should it be?' you ask, 'to see that he's content?' Why, that should be the duty of our glorious Government."

"To uplift all our workmen," the big employer cries; "To let him toil for little pay is neither right nor wise. His children all should go to school, and quite a snug amount. Should cheer him up when he inspects his savings bank account. 'Will it insure these things to him?' Well, hardly! As I view it, it is the bounden duty of the Government to do it."

"The workingmen are our best friends," the trust magnates exclaim; "To tread upon their prostrate necks is an outrageous shame. They ought to own a good real estate and smoke two-bit cigars. And send their Sunday riding 'round in high-class motor cars. 'Will it get them all these things?' you ask. We just were going to say

The Government should do it, and, perhaps, it will, some day."

Not Knocking Anybody, but—

President Wilson didn't want the White House lady named Woodrow, because a distinguished name might deprive him of his own individuality. And so they named the boy after his father. Is it a foregone conclusion then that Sayre is distinction proof?

Not to Say Censors

"It would be better," says Miss Tarbell, "if we writers had task-masters. That is a sentiment in which John D. will heartily agree."

What's War to a Hen?

The hens of Plandora continued to lay through the shock of battle. But they must have been disappointed when they tried to get their triumphant cackles in evidence afterward.

A Hint

It is evident that Congress took a look at one of those machines that report an earthquake before it occurs, and then refused to pass the bill making the District of Columbia dry.

Novel Reading

By MRS. FRANK LEARNED

INDISCRIMINATE novel reading is a positive injury and danger to girls. When we advance this idea we are met sometimes with astonishment or indifference on the part of our friends whose girls are growing up. A few reasons may be given for this manner of meeting our remark. It may not have dawned on these friends that their girls are reading much that comes within reach, and that girls have the right to be properly educated. The novels that encourage false emotions, false sentiments, are sure to blunt the imagination. Problem novels dealing with all sorts of deplorable conditions of life, are most undesirable. An intelligent girl, who is willing to cultivate the best things in life, will not care for trash. A girl with fine instincts and a wholesome mind will not be interested in morbid books. But she needs to find the way out from confusion.

Parents themselves may not have a taste for reading, nor any discrimination. They may have good principles, average intellect and ordinary education, but a limited acquaintance of good literature. They read the new novels with no other reason than because they may be read by the girls. They are able to say they have read them.

Often they have novels about them, but they do not read them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them. They are not interested in them.

Epigrams and Sayings

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

THE more utterly forgetful we are of our own needs in our anxiety for others (not in mere actions, but in our deepest hearts), the more we are remembered and cared for by divine forces.

The most unfortunate being is he who has no one dependent upon him for support. However poor such a man may be, he is wise if he takes a cut, a dog, or a blind beggar to care for, in order that he may get out of himself.

If there had been no God originally, devout belief of billions of souls in His existence would long ago have called Him into being.

Many a low rascal on earth boasts of his noble ancestors under ground.

Some people make such an ado about their virtues, we almost wish they would lose them.

The most cruel judgments in the world come from the women who resent never having been tempted themselves.

Men boast of their indolence, women conceal them.

No soul ever transgressed a divine law without injuring some innocent being. There is no absolute individuality. We are all linked together by invisible and indissoluble threads, spun down from the Great Source. When any man attempts to extricate himself he but more hopelessly interlaces and snarls the network which unites us all.

Loneliness is an all-pervading consciousness of self.

Many an overzealous reformer imagines he is teaching morality when he is really giving instruction in vice. It is dangerous to describe an evil too closely in order to warn against it.

Nothing flatters a man's vanity so much as being told that he is not like other men.
